

Volunteers

University volunteers are uncompensated individuals who perform services directly related to the business of the university, to support the activities of the university, or to gain experience in specific endeavors. The university recognizes the need for balance among several factors: the desirability of volunteer service; the need to protect volunteer interests; and the need to minimize risk to the volunteer and the university. The Volunteer Policy addresses the disparate issues one may encounter when seeking to engage university volunteers (available on the University Policy Office website at https://www.dfa.cornell.edu/sites/default/files/vol6_5.pdf).
