Three faculty Weiss Presidential Fellows and two Appel Fellows honored

By Linda Myers

Cornell President Hunter Rawlings has honored the university's 1999 Weiss Presidential Fellows, recognizing their achievement and distinguished teaching of undergraduates.

Schwab

Schwab received the bachelor's degree from Oxford College, her master's degree from Harvard and her Ph.D. from Cornell. She has been named a Weiss Presidential Scholar.

Weiss

Weiss received her bachelor's degree from Stanford University, her master's degree from Harvard and her Ph.D. from Cornell. She has been named a Weiss Presidential Scholar.

Collins

Collins received her bachelor's degree from the University of Chicago, her master's degree from Harvard and her Ph.D. from Cornell. She has been named a Weiss Presidential Scholar.

Vogelbsang

Vogelbsang received her bachelor's degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and her doctorate in economics from Princeton University. She teaches economics, international monetary theory and international trade.

Burger

Burger received her bachelor's degree from the University of Chicago, her master's degree from Harvard and her Ph.D. from Cornell. She has been named a Weiss Presidential Scholar.

Williamson

Williamson received her bachelor's degree from the University of Chicago, her master's degree from Harvard and her Ph.D. from Cornell. She has been named a Weiss Presidential Scholar.

---

Florence Berger

Professor Florence Berger, School of Hotel Administration

A leader, an educator, a friend, Berger has given many students opportunities to succeed academically and as individuals. Berger has taught courses in management operations, financial resources, and organizational behavior at the School of Hotel Administration as well as courses in the Center for Professional Development and in Cornell University.