Continued on page 4...
Faculty Fellowships continued from page 1

Faculty Fellowships

Elihu Heaven

Heaven is a professor of psychology at the University of California, Berkeley. His research focuses on the role of culture in shaping cognitive processes. He has published extensively on the topic of cultural differences in decision-making and has received numerous awards for his work. Heaven is currently working on a new project exploring the impact of globalization on cognitive development.

Doreen W. Steiger

Steiger is a professor of economics at the University of California, Los Angeles. Her research interests include the economics of innovation and the role of technology in economic growth. She has published extensively in leading journals and has received numerous grants for her work. Steiger is currently working on a project examining the impact of digital technology on the labor market.

Bryan A. Means

Means is a professor of philosophy at the University of California, Irvine. His research focuses on the philosophy of language and the philosophy of mind. He has published extensively in leading journals and has received numerous awards for his work. Means is currently working on a project examining the relationship between language and thought.