

Caster Semenya: South African two-time Olympic gold medallist

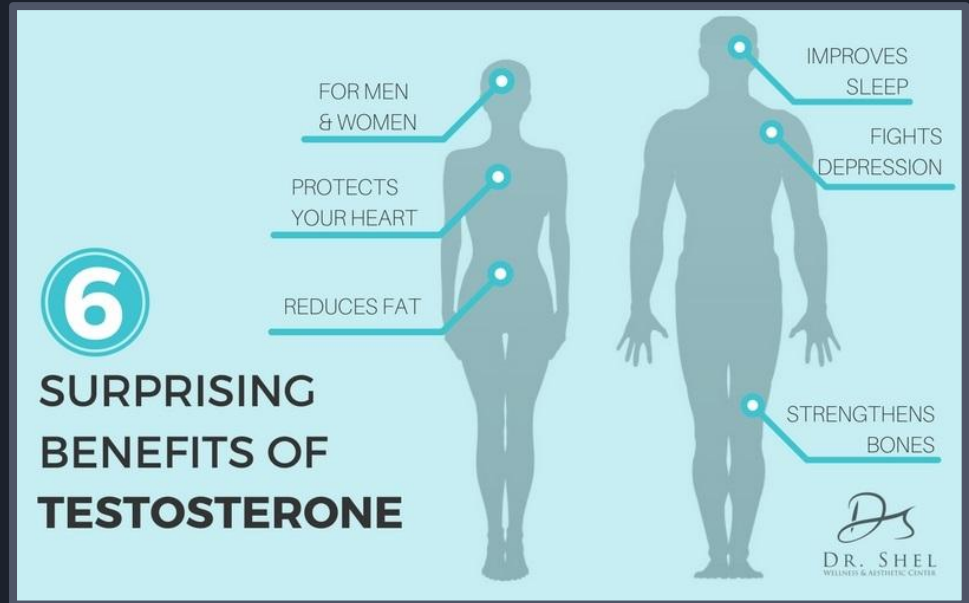

Testosterone can help increase muscle mass, strength and oxygen-carrying capacity.

Testosterone is not just a male hormone, helping metabolism, liver function, bones, muscle, skin and the brain in both sexes.

But still... women's sports and men's sports are separated to protect female athletes.

The International Association of Athletics Federations implemented a rule to limit the testosterone levels in female athletes.

Semenya appealed the IAAF's ruling to The Court of Arbitration for Sport, claiming discrimination, but lost her case.

This rule "may not be compatible with international human rights norms and standards" - United Nations Human Rights Council

Semenya's options for her future career are limited.
