Describe your target audience:

As part of the VVTG project, I agree to the following: Note: There will be a checklist to guide these activities.

- My team will enter data into the VVfG website for all crops contained within the bed design we select to grow. See Q&A for type of data required.
- My team will share photos of the crops we select to grow in Cornell box (link provided). A photo of the beds mid-season, beds with mature crops (before harvest), Vegetables (harvested). The more the better! Note: Any photos that include people must be photo released for use on the VVT website.
- My team will complete a mid-season progress report (link to progress report will be provided)
- My team will complete a post VVT survey to provide feedback about the 2022 VVTG project. (link provided later)

2022 Vegetable Varieties for Gardeners

Please choose one of these two options :

Option 1: We will be growing our own transplants. Mail all seeds to us.

Option 2: We will pick up our transplants on plant pick-up day in May.

(Date and location still to be finalized but will be at Cornell University Campus).

Please select either the 9 bed design OR the 5 bed design:

Design 1: We will grow all 9 beds. (These four plus the beds in Design 2).

- Carribbean Coastline - Pepper Paradise
- Caribbean Coastline - Callaloo & Beans
- Pan-American Herbs
- First Peoples – Winter Squash

OR

Design 2: (5 bed design)

- First Peoples - Sunflower and Bean
- Herbs for People and Pollinators (perennial herbs from previous years along with some new additions)
- Central Americas – Salsa
- South Americas - Fingerling Potato
- Central Americas - Summer Squash
