Overview

Counselors needed for 4-day conservation program taking place at the Ganondagan State Historic Site via the Friends of Ganondagan.

Goals

The Ganondagan Conservation Program seeks to create a bond amongst local environmental professionals, area college students and high school students as well as between these individuals and the Ganondagan State Historic Site.

This program will provide the opportunity to;

- Acquaint high school students with the multitude of environmental disciplines available for study and careers.
- Give high school students hands on field experience in conservation techniques with area professionals and peers from local colleges.
- Forge a bond between high school students and peers and give students an outlet to have college/career questions answered.
- Further efforts of the Invasive Species Project at Ganondagan.
- Provide a perspective of history and sustainability unique to the Ganondagan State Historic Site and its former Seneca inhabitants.

Requirements

College students applying for the Environmental Specialist Counselor position should be enrolled in a degree relating to the field of environmental science in some way. Students must also have a valid Drivers License, be available for all training and program dates, pass evaluation and be capable of physical requirements involved in hiking and removal of invasive species. Knowledge of plant taxonomy is not required, but encouraged.

Evaluation

Applicants will be required to read a short narrative on the Native American history of the site and complete a brief quiz on the information.
